

Pays Tribute To Late Dr. Quynn

Congressman Charles McC. Mathias Jr., from Maryland's Sixth Congressional District, honored the late Dr. Dorothy Mackay Quynn, "world famous author, historian and lecturer," before members of the U. S. House of Representatives April 28.

Part of Congressman Mathias' remarks, which he had entered in the Congressional Record, state that Dr. Quynn was "one of Frederick, Maryland's renowned citizens" and that an article of hers on John Frederick Amelung "published in the Maryland Historical Society magazine in 1948 was largely responsible for renewed interest and subsequent excavations at the historic Amelung Glassworks site."

Mr. Mathias continued, "As a tribute to this outstanding woman's life and works, the Frederick, Md., Branch of the American Association of University Women is working toward the establishment of a Dorothy Mackay Quynn Fellowship."

In extending his remarks to the members of the House, the Congressman read into the record the life story of Dr. Quynn which appeared in the April 7 edition of the Frederick News.
